The booming Territories

THE one thing that has saved Hongkong from being drowned by a tidal wave of people in recent years is the New Territories which has become a vast "catchment area" for overflowing population and development. New townships, industries, recreational areas, schools, hospitals, banks, resettlement estates and flats are spilling over from urban Kowloon and Hongkong, and the quaint and peaceful rural atmosphere of old China is being transformed with a speed that is both bewildering and dazzling.

The report of the New Territories administration tabled in the Legislative Council ten days ago aptly described the process as one of upheaval and change. How many, for example, would have realised that the number of subsidised primary schools now runs to 241, showing an increase of 33 in the year 1959-60? The big programme for lighting the larger New Territories villages announced by China Light last Saturday more-over amounts to a recognition of their potential as centres of industry and population.

THE question that is clearly posed by the latest report is how the administration of government going to be reorganised to deal with this tremendous change-over? It seems that the present establishment under the District Commissioner and his various District Officers is rapidly being submerged by the volume of administrative work in spite of the reallocation of duties to other departments. Moreover the extent to which Government services are in demand suggests the need for a secretariat building in which the planning, direction and administration of New Territories affairs can be centralised.

To be quartered on top of a bank in Tsun Wan as the District Office is now, may be more convenient than an office in Gascoigne-road, but Government is going to find sooner or later that it is so heavily committed in so many ways that nothing less than a full-scale secretariat situated in the Territories will suffice. Furthermore while none would wish to saddle the already overtaxed District Commissioner with any further obligations, he or his representative should be seated in the Colony's Legislative Council to deal with the affairs of a population that must be fast rising to half a million. These are thoughts that are inspired by a report that is almost a year old and they are impressions that will if anything grow stronger with the years.

THOSE who have read the report and have been able to gain some idea of the magnitude of the transformation being undertaken and the demands it is making on the various departments will have little difficulty realising that while Hongkong and Kowloon have developed in the last ten years, it will be the New Territories turn in the next ten years. It has a future full of challenge, full of promise—and full of problems too, but with men of the calibre of the present administration there is no reason to doubt that its success will be as spectacular.

New Congo Premier warns against savage brutality CLOUD HANGING OVER NATION

Lumumba's men rounded up

Leopoldville, Feb. 16. The new Premier of the Congo, Mr Joseph Iléo, warned his countrymen today against "violence and savage brutality" in the wake of Mr Patrice Lumumba's death.

The Congo: holiday round-up

During the Chinese New Year holidays, the Congo has again been filling the headlines of the world's press following the killing of the Congolese Premier, Mr Lumumba. Riots and protests have been reported in many cities including Beirut, Colombo, Madras, Lagos, Cairo and Mombasa.

The Soviet Union in the United Nations has made new demands for the resignation of the Secretary General, Mr Dag Hammarskjöld, but he has refused to quit. The American President in his press conference issued a warning against intervention and made it clear that America would oppose any attempt by any nation to do so.

NORMAL
But while there has been widespread uneasiness outside the Congo, events in the Congo have been normal. The only exception was a case reported by the United Nations of the beating-up by Africans of 12 Europeans.

But the main political event has been a swing among neutral, African and Communist nations to the support of the Stanleyville regime of Mr Antoine Gizenga, who has succeeded his murdered chief, Mr Lumumba.

Among these nations which have announced recognition of the Gizenga regime are Morocco, Cuba, the Algerian "Provisional Government", Yugoslavia, Ghana, Guinea, Czechoslovakia, Mongolia, Rumania while Indonesia, China and other Communist bloc countries are talking of doing so.

More detailed news of events touching on the Congo crisis, including a report of the clash in the Security Council which forced adjournment of the debate, are to be found on page seven.

U.S. cigarettes to be made here

New York, Feb. 16. P. Lorillard Co today announced a major expansion of its Southeast Asian operations through the completion of foreign licensing agreements with major cigarette makers in Hongkong, Singapore and Malaya.

The company said the agreement marks the first time that one of its brands or one of those of any major U.S. cigarette company will be produced locally in Southeast Asia.

The company said the brand will sell for 40 per cent less than those imported from the U.S. The agreement was signed with United Tobacco Co Ltd of Hongkong, the Malayan Cigarette Manufacturers of Johore Bahru and the Malayan Cigarette Manufacturers of Singapore.—UPI.

TWO SQUATTER FIRES OVER HOLIDAYS

A second squatter fire broke out in Kowloon this morning after a fire yesterday made 1,700 people homeless in another squatter area. Twenty huts were destroyed in this morning's fire which was near Tai Hang Tung resettlement area. About 200 were made homeless.

Avalanche kills villagers

Magano, Feb. 17. Eleven people were crushed to death last night when a huge avalanche of snow and dirt smashed down on their flimsy houses at the village of Sakai, 35 miles northwest of this central Japan city.

Ten people crawled out of the debris to safety, but three of them were seriously injured. Initial reports said six other persons were missing, but it was later believed all had been accounted for and that there were only 21 people in the houses. The villagers were just preparing for bed when, without warning, a mass of snow and dirt 150 feet in width tumbled down a mountainside. The avalanche was started by heavy snow. Rescue operations were hampered by eight feet of snow in the area, and snow was still falling.—UPI.

CYPRUS KILLING

Nicosia, Feb. 16. Three masked men today shot and killed a bus company operator in his office. The men fled in a waiting car after killing a Turkish-Cypriot, Djemal Hamza, last week elected headman of Mari village. Police said there may be a connection with the kidnapping of a Turkish policeman in the same village three weeks ago.—UPI.

Elderly spinsters walk into sea and die

Felixstowe, Feb. 16. Two elderly maiden sisters, heartbroken because Newmarket council condemned their tiny cottage, sold up their girlhood treasures, wrote polite "thank you" notes to the tradesmen, took a taxi to nearby Felixstowe, and hand-in-hand walked out into the sea to die. There was shocked silence as a Felixstowe coroner's court heard how the Palethorpe sisters 75-year-old Elsie and 72-year-old Sophia—had tried to hold together Woodbine cottage, the lace- and -antique-filled home of their Victorian childhood. And in a verdict of suicide was returned. Newmarket urban council clerk John Crabbe, visibly much distressed, said "I had no idea these two dear old souls felt so badly."—AFP.

HOLIDAY TRAFFIC TOLL

A total of 24 traffic accidents occurred over Chinese New Year holidays, according to figures released by the Police this morning.

Twelve occurred on Wednesday and twelve on Thursday. A total of 23 people were sent to hospital as a result of these accidents and 13 were not detained. There were no fatal accidents.

100 FINED FOR CRACKER OFFENCES

A total of 53 adults were fined by Mr T. L. Yang at Causeway Bay Court this morning for unauthorized discharge of firecrackers during the Chinese New Year holidays.

The fines ranged from $20 to $250. The man who was fined $250 was also ordered to pay $25 compensation to the four-year-old boy whose face was injured when the firecracker exploded. Forty-seven juveniles were each fined $2 by Mr D. Benson at Causeway Bay Juvenile Court this morning for unauthorized discharge of firecrackers during the Chinese New Year holidays.

UN plane crashes

Leopoldville, Feb. 16. An Italian plane flying for the United Nations crashed on take-off at Luluabourg today and UN Headquarters said at least three of the occupants were killed.—UPI.

BRUSSELS PLANE DISASTER

DEATH WAS 5 MINUTES AWAY

Brussels, Feb. 16. An electronic breakdown may have blocked out the transmission of landing instructions to the Boeing 707 airliner which crashed here on Wednesday near Brussels airport killing 73 persons, it was said here today.

First results of the investigation into the disaster indicated that contact with the plane was cut off exactly five minutes before the crash occurred. The investigation was continuing.

American experts were arriving here today to join the inquiry.

The communications blackout apparently occurred when the airport approach services turned the plane over to the airport landing services.

About 60 seconds before the accident occurred the U.S.-built airliner operated by the Sabena airlines came in about 500 feet above airport runway in what looked like a normal position for a landing.

Then suddenly it plunged into the earth.

All 72 persons aboard the plane were killed, and so was a farmer in the field where the plane fell.

The bodies of 40 persons have been recovered from the wreckage so far.

A piece of plane debris also covered the legs of farm worker Marcel Lauwers, who was in the crash field.

Lauwers' condition was said to be improving today.—AFP.

Wall Street advances third day in a row

New York, Feb. 16. Stocks achieved their third consecutive advance on heavy volume today but the going was not easy.

Steels, motors, chemicals and national defense shares had fairly good support while big profit-taking holes appeared in many other sections of the list.

Inland, Carpenter, U.S. steel and Allegheny-Ludlum were among the better steel issues. Ford and GM added fractions in the motors. Dupont was a strong spot in the chemicals. American telephone added more than a couple in response to its rights offering and North American moved ahead well in the air-arms.

Brokers said the list was experiencing difficulty as it approached the 450 level in the Dow-Jones Industrials. This was the June "recovery" after the market's downturn early in 1960. Technicians said they looked for a period of rest if even "correction" if this level was not penetrated decisively.

Today's volume was 5,070,000 shares.

Of a total 1,277 shares traded, 652 were higher and 428 lower. American exchange volume was 2,000,000 shares.

Bonds volume amounted to $7,240,000.

Rubber market

New York, Feb. 16. Rex rubber futures today closed 45 to 69 points lower with sales of 94 contracts.

Commission house liquidation and dealer selling orders predominated, reflecting the indifference among factory buyers. In the shipment market, limited offerings again reflected the Singapore holiday.

Elsewhere, Colombo thick crude was reported offered at 30 cents, February, March, cost and freight, and uncolored.

Malaya offered some smoked blankets at 22 1/2 cents, also uncolored. Locally, current month was quoted 28 cents, also uncolored.

In London, the rubber market was easier with spot quoted at 24-9/16 pence.

In Amsterdam, the market was quiet today.—UPI.

LONDON STOCKS RISE

London, Feb. 16. There was renewed confidence in London Stock market today and most sections recorded fresh gains.

Sentiment was still being influenced by optimism regarding the long-term business outlook in the United Kingdom while the further advance of Wall Street last night was an additional helpful factor.

In the gilt-edged market, dated stocks claimed a fair amount of attention and showed gains extending to seven-sixteenths but the undated issues remained neglected.

The noteworthy features of foreign bonds was the firmness of German issues. In rails Canadian Pacific was dull but most United States dollar stocks were better under Wall Street's influence. Although steel shares eased on the somewhat pessimistic statement by the Chairman of Lancashire Steel Corporation, good improvements were recorded in most other industrial sections.

Engineering issues and electrical equipments improved and breweries displayed marked firmness. Textiles were generally better and leading shares improved, in shipping shares, Petroleum and Oriental deferred were again firm in front of next week's dividend. Numerous other leading stocks advanced. Bank and hire purchase finance issues also moved to better levels.

Gold shares opened firm but later reacted in response to small London and Continental selling, diamonds and coppers were dull, oil shares quietly firm at one time but eased later. Tea shares again improved but rubbers were neglected.—Reuter.

BURMESE SHOOT DOWN KMT PLANE

Rangoon, Feb. 16. The Burma army said this evening that a four-engine supply plane belonging to Nationalist China has been shot down in Burmese territory 13 miles from Mong Hpyak, about 500 miles from Rangoon.

One Burma air force Sea Fury crashed after being fired upon by the Nationalist plane, the announcement said.

It said the supply plane was painted green.

Two men were reported to have parachuted from the stricken KMT plane and to have landed in Burmese territory.

Rangoon military officials said the B-24 bomber had been dropping supplies to Chinese Nationalist troops on Burmese territory.—AP.

Eddie Fisher in hospital

London, Feb. 16. Crooner Eddie Fisher was rushed here by air from Munich during the night for an emergency appendix operation in the same London clinic where his film star wife Elizabeth ("Elizbeth") Taylor was treated recently for meningitis.

This time it was Liz who waited anxiously by her husband's bedside.

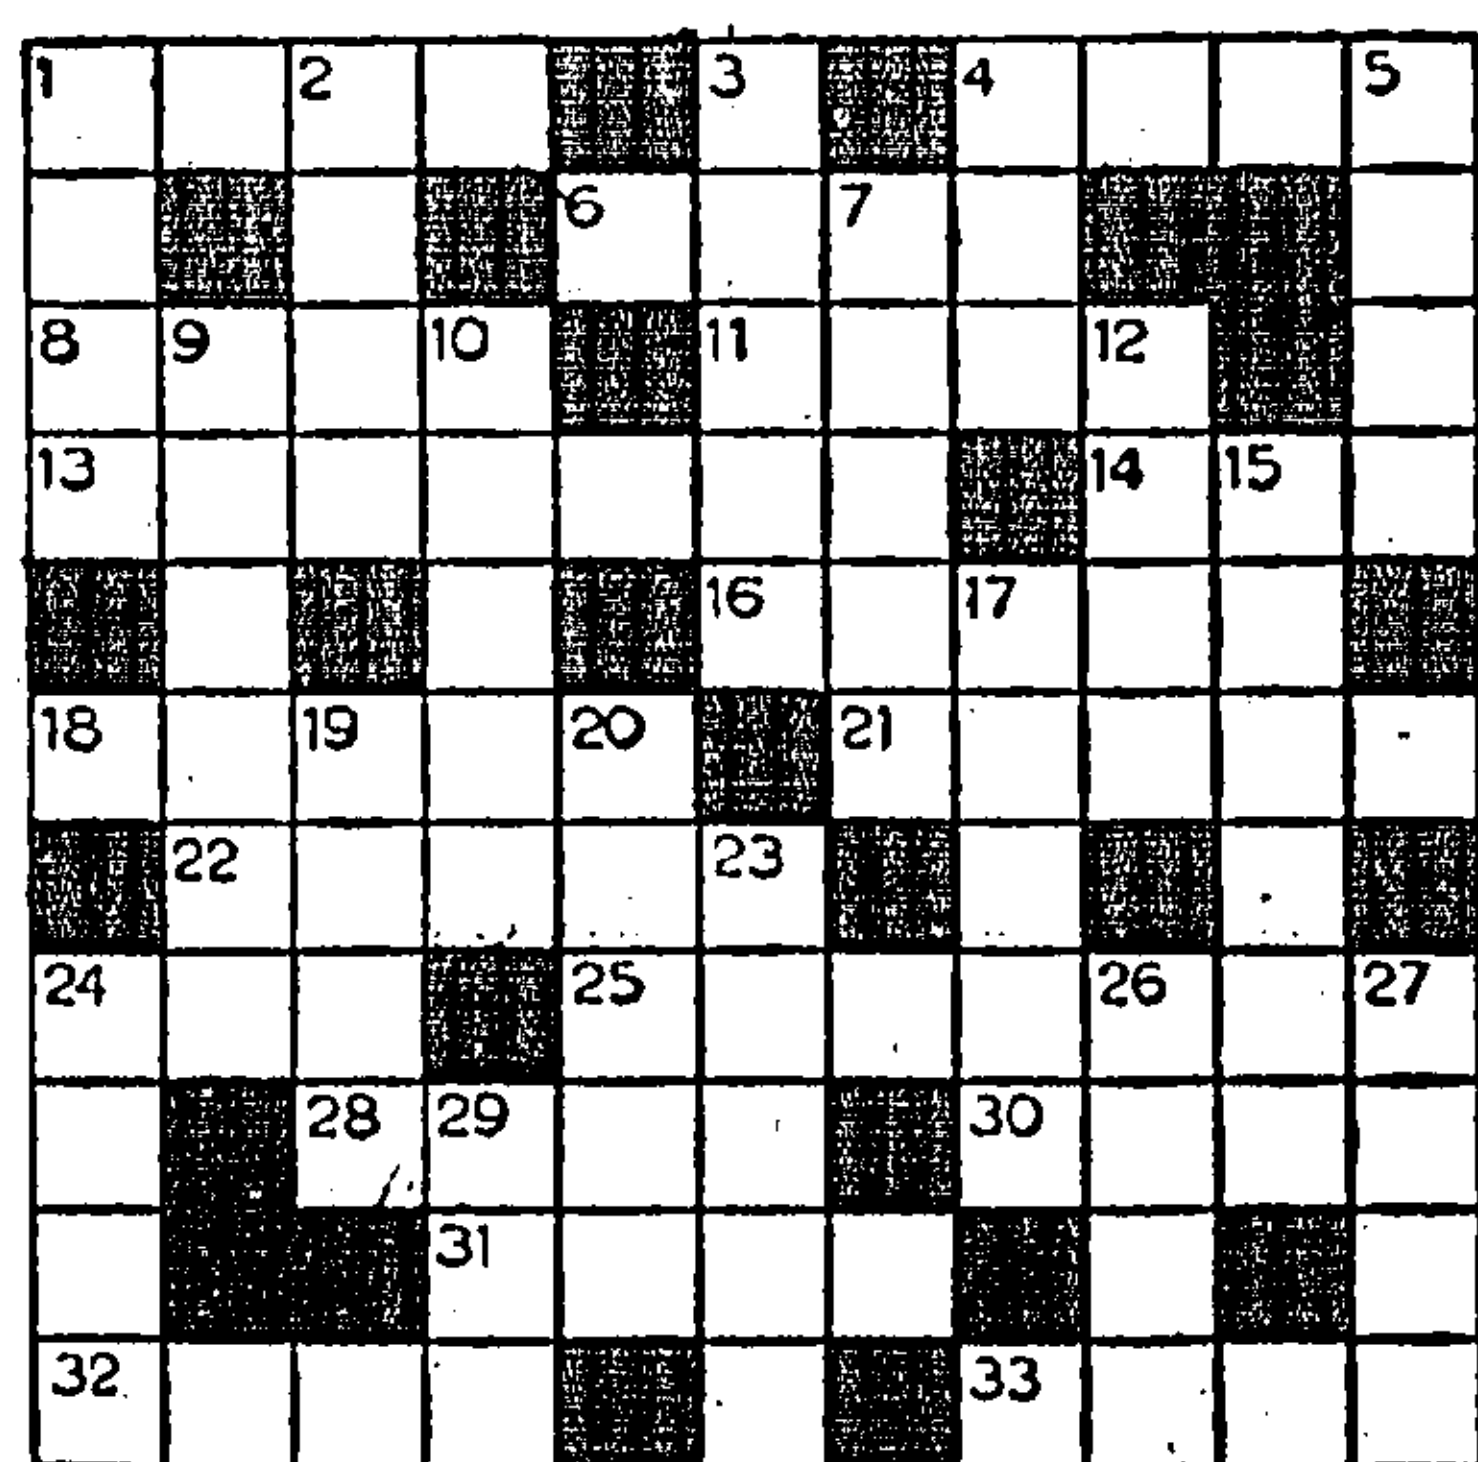

The couple had been on holiday in Germany pending a decision as to whether filming would resume on the long-ridden 20th Century Fox epic "Cleopatra"—hamstrung by Miss Taylor's long-drawn-out illness.—AP.

TANKER AGROUND

The report said tugs were sent to pull the grounded vessel off the shoal. The location was given as the strait between Cebu and Bohol islands.—AP.

Best eclipse of sun in history over Europe

London, Feb. 16. Scientists in aircraft and millions of people on the television link on Wednesday watched what was probably the best observed eclipse of the sun in history.

The eclipse—the first total one to be seen in France since 1912—"hit" Europe near Bordeaux at 0732 GMT, before taking a wide sweep over Italy, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Rumania, Crimea, and the Ural.

Russian scientists in a TU-104 jet met the eclipse at Moscow, and followed its course across the Crimea—where it cast the widest shadow—prolonging observations for 80 seconds longer than possible from the ground.

The television link—ranging from France to Yugoslavia—brought the total eclipse within reach of those parts of the Continent where the sun was only partially obscured.

But for television cameramen in Yugoslavia, perched on the mountain top where they had worked for days to transport their equipment, mist obscured the phenomenon for all but the last few seconds.

There were varying reports of the effect on the animal kingdom of the sudden disappearance of the sun.

From southern France, it was reported that dogs fled howling, and seagulls took refuge in rocks during the brief period of darkness.

Scientists there reported that the temperature dropped between five and six degrees centigrade along the path of the eclipse. In Britain, the usual morning rise in temperature was delayed about an hour.—Reuters.

Lent begins

Rome, Feb. 16. His forehead marked with ashes, Pope John XXIII led a religious procession on Aventine Hill yesterday, opening the 40-day Lenten period of penance in preparation for Easter.—AP.

Labour health bill censure fails

London, Feb. 16.

Another bitter all-night attack by the Labour opposition failed to prevent House of Commons approval today of higher charges for patients of Britain's National Health scheme.

Late in the 16-hour session Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservatives pushed through the fee increase bill on second reading 203-193. The bill will go to the House of Lords after a third reading later, which usually deals with minor amendments but during which the Labour MPs will probably harass the Conservatives some more.

The vote was never in doubt since the government, when all House members are present, has a majority of about 80. But the Labour MPs staged a campaign of censure through two all-night sessions to slow down passage.

By the time the session adjourned, commuters were beginning to pour into London for work.

Under the bill, certain health service benefits will cost more and the social security fees paid by worker and employer will go up. Medical prescription, for example, will cost two shillings instead of one.—AP.

'Worst demonstration in history of UN'
NEGROES CAUSE CHAOS IN SECURITY COUNCIL
Police guard building

New York, Feb. 16.

A guard of more than 150 policemen was assigned to the United Nations building area today to cope with any recurrence of the disorder that erupted among demonstrators there yesterday.

Demonstrations against United Nations and Belgian policies in the Congo and in protest against the slaying of Patrice Lumumba had erupted on the streets of both New York City and Washington.

Wild disorders also broke out in the public gallery of the Security Council as the US Ambassador Mr. Adlai E. Stevenson hit out at the Soviet Union for allegedly trying to wreck the United Nations.

Recessed

It was the worst demonstration in the history of the U.N. Council President Sir Patrick Dean of Britain recessed the meeting while guards cleared the gallery.

About ten Negro men, wearing hats and overcoats, burst through the back door of the public gallery. They rushed down the aisles shouting "Vive Lumumba."

Mr. Stevenson was speaking on the Congo problem. Guards wrestled with the demonstrators and three or four fights erupted in the gallery. The turmoil was so great that Sir Patrick Dean ordered the galleries cleared.

The fighting continued outside the Security Council galleries in the third floor corridor. "Don't shoot me," one demonstrator shouted as he was hustled to an elevator. A Negro woman struck a guard. Tourists in the corridor watched the struggle.—AP.

Says Kennedy—
Only government
under Kasavubu
can be accepted

Washington, Feb. 16.

President Kennedy warned Russia yesterday against any attempt to "intervene unilaterally" in the Congo. He said it was the duty of the United States and other United Nations members to oppose any such intervention.

The President, opening his news conference with a statement on the Congo crisis, did not specifically name Russia but said he was "seriously concerned at what appears to be a threat of unilateral intervention."

This was an obvious reference to Russia's recognition of the rebel government of Antoine Gizenga at Stanleyville—recognition coupled with a promise of support and aid.

Support

The United States will continue to support the U.N. in the Congo, he said.

Only a government established under (Congo President) Joseph Kasavubu can be accepted at this time, he said.

The broadening of the government under Kasavubu is a legitimate subject of discussion. But the recognition of factions in other parts of that divided country "can only confuse and make more difficult the establishment of a unified Congo."

Mr. Kennedy also deplored any attempt to "destroy" the United Nations—again an evident reference to Russia's demand on Tuesday for withdrawal of United Nations forces from the Congo and for the removal of Dr. Dag Hammarskjöld as UN Secretary General.

There were also these developments: Authorities in the Congo said the repercussions to the death of Mr. Patrice Lumumba have still not erupted to the extent of the widespread disturbances which were expected. Many arrests were made today in Leopoldville's African quarter, and Mr. Joseph Ileo, Prime Minister, said his Government would take "vigorous action against troublemakers." At the United Nations, the UN Secretary-General Mr. Dag Hammarskjöld said he would not resign in the face of Soviet demands that he be dismissed as being responsible for the slaying of Congolese leftist leader Patrice Lumumba.

In London, a group of Labour MP's condemned the British Government for its Congo policy and urged the democratic election of a new Congolese Prime Minister in place of the late Patrice Lumumba. They tabled a motion to this effect in the House of Commons.

In London, Lord Home, the Foreign Secretary described the slaying of Patrice Lumumba as "a disgraceful episode which we utterly deplore."—AP, Reuters and UPI.

death

Manila, Feb. 15. A 65-year-old grandmother and her three grandchildren were hacked to death on Tuesday by a group of marines near the world-famous Benguet rice terraces in northern Luzon.

All four were asleep when the killers sneaked into their village home. Constabulary investigators, surveying the mutilated bodies after the crime, said it was the work of "cold-blooded marines."

The parents of the slain children were in Manila at the time of the massacre.—AFP.

'How Lumumba died'

Belgrade, Feb. 15. The official Tass news agency of Yugoslavia, a pro-Lumumba nation, reported today that Patrice Lumumba was shot dead by a Belgian Army captain immediately after he was transferred as a prisoner to Katanga province on Jan. 17.—AP.

STUDENTS
EMBASSIES

Cairo, Feb. 15. Hounding students today attacked the American Library, smashed windows at the UN Information Centre and set the Belgian Embassy afire in a violent protest to the death of Patrice Lumumba.

Cairo strikers rushed to the Belgian Embassy—the scene of the heaviest damage—while police carrying bamboo sticks dispersed the mobs at the US Library and the UN Centre.

Later, in Brussels, angry Belgian students smashed all windows of the United Arab Republic Embassy in Brussels in retaliation from a similar attack on the Belgian Embassy in Cairo.—AP and UPI.

Plane missing

Manila, Feb. 16. A US Navy F4B "Fury" jet plane has been missing since 9 pm yesterday, the US Naval Station at Sangley Point reported today.—UPI.

FAR TOO CLEVERLY MADE TO FALL AFOUL OF OUR CENSORS— BUT THESE ARE 'SICK' FILMS... LOVE IN THE SEWER

ABOUT a month ago, I spent the best part of a morning looking at a film, and when it was over the exhibitor asked me what I thought of it. My reply was "Disinfect the theatre."

He, to his credit, was of the same opinion, so that is one film you will not see in Hongkong.

Mind you, there was nothing in the film that related it to the kind seized by our local censors when they raid a cockpit. The film is question was largely devoted to the story of a woman who was a mistress by profession and a seducer of youth by desire. The producer was far too clever to make anything that might have landed him in trouble with the law. The characters were stripped down to the maximum so permitted, and the film cut at that stage where they performed as described in "Lady Chatterley's Lover."

Fully three-quarters of the film was given to the approach dealt with such scenes as the boy's own occupation in seducing a girl nearer to his own sex. The law in regard to obscenity is hard to define, and on that account it is so easy to get round it.

Certain words are taboo, certain scenes are taboo. It is for that reason that certain works of art have languished in the collected dust of decades, while pulp paper trash with lurid covers have sold readily, and legally from the book stalls on the Queen's Highway.

Suggestive

To get back to the film in question. There was nothing a censor could censor, legally. Nothing was exposed that should have remained hidden. Nothing was said that should not be said. Yet the whole film stunk to high heaven. For it was suggestive, and if you ask me, suggestiveness is obscenity, while outspokenness is not.

Why do I say that? Because to be outspoken is to hide nothing, while suggestiveness leers like an aged prostitute in a dark passage.

Take one scene. The woman in her underclothes, the boy minus his shirt. They embrace. Camera cuts. Next scene, two pairs of falling legs.

Now if the same scene had been taken without the cut, and the camera had panned down the bodies to hold the scene of the legs, the producer would have been safely behind bars by now.

Difficulty

That is the difficulty. There is little doubt that these kind of films which attract a certain section of the public are enjoying a minor vogue.

Two, to my knowledge, cashed in in Hongkong, but since then, nothing much has happened. On the other hand, the companies making only this kind of film are not represented out here, and their prize efforts are not to hand. But that does not mean to say they might not try to build up a "sick" audience here for their "sick" films.

By

Then, I could myself be dead wrong. Perhaps it is a streak of prudishness in me that considers such films disgusting.

However I am in good company, if for reasons different from my own. Martin Quigley, Jr. the editor of the influential trade journal, the "Motion Picture Herald" has warned the American theatre groups that on unwarranted obsession with films which offend family taste will mean that the American public will in turn become their own censors, and that responsible parents will lead their children away from pictures altogether. And if that happens, the cinema theatres can put up the shutters.

No courage?

Mr John Davis, the head of the Rank Organisation, made this reply to the long-haired, dirty-neck community, who have appointed themselves the arbiters of British films. They accused Ranks of being too timid to follow certain sections of the Italian film making industry.

Said Davis: "On occasion I have been accused of many things. And one of them is that Pinewood Studios have no courage in making films. But if you make films at all you have to have courage, because there are great risks involved and large sums of money. If the people who accused me meant that we do not make long, drawn-out sordid films, then I am glad. Our results show that our policy is justified."

He went on to point out that in Britain in 1950, 54 per cent of all film goers were women. In 1960, under 50 per cent of the audience were women, and during the same period, 54 per cent of the married women had stopped going to the cinemas. He asked: "wonder how much responsibility for this" non-attendance of women has come about through unnecessary close-ups in colour, and he went on to describe some of the doubtful aspects of some films.

All that remains to say is that among the guests of the function at which Mr Davis made his speech were the heads of the largest British and American companies, or their representatives in Britain. And the speech brought the house down!

Fortunately in Hongkong, we have a fine censorship board, neither too timid on one hand, and yet reasoning that adult fare is adult fare. But best of all, seeing when someone is trying to slip a fast one on them.

THIS is the LOOK

LONDON (NOT PARIS) HAD IT FIRST

ANYONE who saw the Paris fashion shows this season might assume — looking at the dress on the right — that it was one of those lightning copies. For this is the 1961 look of long, flat bodice and down-sliding waistline, of short skirt and flaring pleats that all Paris showed, taken to the 20-ish extreme that Jules Crahay at Nina Ricci designed so gaily and showed along with the complete flapper props.

In fact, it was designed by Mary Quant, of Chelsea, last September and has been such a best-seller in London that she's repeating it for summer in linen.

In the collection she showed then, six months ago, the principal line was focussed around the hips, flat of bodice, fairly waistless, and very short of skirt: startled observers were heard to murmur that it was all un-nervingly reminiscent of the 20's; in the event it simply meant that Chelsea had, once more, got there six months ahead of Paris, and British amateurs of fashion can feel a glow of chauvinistic pride.

London liked this one: but when Mary showed it in New York in her collection before Christmas, buyers who had snapped up her other kooky clothes with cries of delight and appreciation, turned pale at the sight of it and said that it was too extreme for them. (Which makes Chelsea one up on New York, too).

Knarf And Carpenter

—Shadow Learns All About Building A House—

By MAX TRELL

KNARF, the Shadow Boy with the Turned-About Name, heard the sound of the hammering. Then he walked to the middle of the block to find out what was going on.

In the middle of the block Knarf came to a big empty lot. In the middle of the empty lot was a stack of wooden boards. A man was taking the boards and standing some of them up, and laying some of them down, and every now and then hammering nails into them to make them stay in place.

"Hello, Carpenter," said Knarf.

"Hello, Boy," said the Carpenter.

"Why are you nailing those boards together, Carpenter?" asked Knarf.

"I'm building a floor," said the Carpenter.

"A floor to walk on?" asked Knarf.

The Carpenter nodded. He hammered some more.

"Now," he said at last, "the floor is finished." Then he walked across it, back and forth, stamping on it. "It's a good strong floor, Boy."

"Why are you building a floor in the middle of this empty lot?" Knarf asked.

The Carpenter smiled.

"There's more to it than that, Boy," he said. "Now that the floor is finished, I'm going to build four walls."

Knarf watched the Carpenter as he stood up the boards. He hammered nails into them, one after the other, so that the boards kept on standing.

"Why are you building walls, Carpenter?" asked Knarf.

"To keep the rain and the wind off the floor, Boy," answered the Carpenter.

"Are you building a house, Carpenter?" asked Knarf.

The Carpenter nodded.

"What he's building

"I'm building a floor, and walls, and a roof, and windows, and a door."

"That's a house," said Knarf. "It will be when people live in it," said the Carpenter.

"Will it with I could build a house," said Knarf.

"You can," said the Carpenter.

"But I can't," said Knarf. "I need boards and a hammer and nails."

"No, you don't," said the Carpenter. "Take the 'Birds,' he said. 'They build houses for themselves without boards or hammers or nails.'"

"Good-bye, Carpenter," said Knarf.

"Good-bye, Boy," said the Carpenter.

And Knarf ran all the way home, all the way upstairs, and sat watching Mother make dinner, and kept thinking about all the things that went into building a house, outside and inside.

PARIS LOOK 1961—the way Chelsea has been seeing it since 1960, complete with long, flat bodice and short, swingy skirt. The dress was a best-seller right up to the New Year in wool; now it emerges in summery linen and the Paris colours of pale pink, maize and deep orange. The sleeveless top slides down way past waist level, and is braided in white; the bouncy box-pleated skirt is, in fact, mounted in a full-length slip attached to the sweater-top. The hat is by Reed Crawford.

Rupert and the Winter Sale-12

Rupert is not sure whether he has seen anything tall or not. "There's just room for a little thing to go under this counter," he murmurs. "I can't see. It's all dark. Anyway, nobody seems to have lost anything, so perhaps I was wrong. I mustn't waste any time."

Getting up, he finds that the crowd is less dense for the moment, and he goes round. "Mummy's not in sight now," he sighs. "And I don't know which way she went. I fear, I really don't much like the kind of shopping I'm doing."

I foresee problems below

THE 1961 line, a radical changeover from preceding silhouettes, hands out, as always, a great big bonus in some directions—a great big headache, in others.

The BONUS will be for every woman who has never been able to buy straight-skirted suits or dresses off the peg because her figure curved over-generously out at hip-level... and to whom the read-slim fashions of the last five years have been frustration itself.

For her, now, happiness, and the seductive sway of pleats from hip-level; the flattering flare of skirts that positively NEEDED hips as a point of departure. The HEADACHE: for the bra business, that for years now has been living off words like "uplift."

Lunatic fringe

Only the lunatic fringe still advertise their wares with adjectives like "Sword-Point" (which I have, however, seen) and "sweater-girls" nowadays, if they think of any firm star at all, think in terms of Audrey Hepburn rather than Lana Turner. But the fact remains that fashion has issued a steady edict: Away with the bust. For the bra makers, the agonised question is: How likely is the Flat Look to catch on?

No-panic front

So far, the big firms are putting up a brave no-panic front. We don't think for a moment that the bust is going to disappear," said one firm. "though, perhaps, a little toning-down may be necessary."

Possibly, we shall be thinking in terms of a softer, more rounded kind of bra," said another firm, "but in our enormous range we've always catered for very diverse tastes, anyway."

"Bras ARE made for women, after all," said another firm, rather plaintively.

They all see Brigitte Bardot as a steady influence.

My guess, however, is that all the major firms are working flat out right round the clock to get the new kind of bra for the new kind of look on to the market.

One house in Paris, after all, showed its collection on mannequins who wore no bras at all.

JACOBY on BRIDGE

A RUBBER bridge player is only concerned with his partner and his opponents. A duplicate player has to consider everyone in the field.

At rubber bridge South would win the first club in his own hand; play the king and nine of spades with intention of finessing. West would show out and South would make exactly three no-trump.

At duplicate South would note that a lot of pairs would be in four spades, not three no-trump. Incidentally South should have raised spades instead of bidding no-trump.

WARGAMES

Q—The bidding has been:
North East South West
1♣ Pass 2♣ Pass
3♦ Pass ?
What do you do?
A—Bid four hearts. You don't think much of your hand, but you aren't going to pass a force.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner continues with a bid of four spades. What do you do now?

Answer Tomorrow

NORTH		EAST
♠A31082	♥A9	♠Q54	♥KJ73
♦876	♣KQ3	♦Q5	♣54
WEST		SOUTH (D)
♠3	♥Q85	♠KQ7	♥10642
♦J1012	♣KJ1007	♦AKQ4	♣A3
No one vulnerable		South West North East
1♣	Pass	1♣	Pass
1NT	Pass	2NT	Pass
3NT	Pass	3NT	Pass
Opening lead—4♣

The normal play in spades would be to ruff a club and then go after spades the same way! This line of play would produce five odd if West held the spade queen and four odd if the cards actually are.

Now how should South play this three no-trump in duplicate?

He should win the first club in dummy; lead the jack of spades and let it ride. Now he will wind up making four no-trump for an exceptionally good score.

Of course, if West held the queen of spades South would get a bottom, but give West the queen of spades and South wasn't going to do well anyway.

HAPPY FANS GO CRACKERS

Magnificent double victory gives the Chinese New Year
 a wonderful kick-off

By I. M. MacTAVISH

Twenty-two thousand nine hundred and sixty-six Colony soccer fans will never forgive themselves. That was the number of empty seats at the Hongkong Stadium yesterday afternoon when the Hongkong Selection, giving the greatest display by a Colony side in recent years, thrashed the national champions of Switzerland, the Young Boys of Berne, by five goals to two.

This was Hongkong football's most magnificent hour. Not only did the Hongkong Selection outclass the visitors in every division of the soccer arts and sciences but they also resisted the most virulent provocation to reduce the game to its lowest depths and eventually emerged dignified as well as worthy winners.

The Young Boys played threadbare impoverished football without the merest hint of the class they are supposed to possess. As the Hongkong side hit the high spots with a glorious display of one-for-all-for-one soccer the Swiss team resorted to some atrocious tactics—blatant pushing, arguing, elbowing, hacking and vicious tackling. The guilty men-in-chief were skipper Meier where conduct was a shocking example to the rest of the side... and substitute Fuhrer who seemed determined to bring everyone within reach down to size.

Unredeeming

The Swiss champions had not a single redeeming feature in their line-up. They showed hardly a scrap of football skill; their tactical plan was non-existent; by comparison with the free-footed slick thinking Chinese they were a study lot... and for the second time in two days one was left wondering how they gathered their present reputation... and how their many honours were won.

The Hongkong triumph was complete and absolute. The game was a wonderful personal triumph for Lau Chi-lam who scored all five goals, but this was no one man show. It was without doubt the most delightful display we have seen from a Colony side in many years. All the skills and arts were there to be admired and appreciated. Brilliant passing, clever covering, intelligent running into the open space... and always the quick silver thrusts of Lau Chi-lam to collect the goal dividends which their enterprise so richly deserved.

What a tragedy it was that only 5,534 spectators saw our representatives in their greatest hour. A display like this deserved a packed house... even if the opposition was only a shadow of what we had every right to expect. The Stadium pitch looked much healthier and temptingly under the refreshing rain but with Lau Woon-ching and Lee Tak-wai unfit the home side had to make two changes in the selected line-up. Au Pang-nin and Tse Ben-ken carried in for the team but the latter did not last long and after a nasty injury in the 28th minute, he was replaced by Lo Kwok-tai who proceeded to turn in a top class performance.

First goal

The opening half was all in favour of the home side and Lau Chi-lam got his first goal of the game after a quarter of an hour when he punched for position in the penalty area and scored with a fast ground shot close to the post. Goalkeeper Elch looked very slow in getting down to the ball.

The goal gave the local boys the encouragement they needed but, although they continued to control the run of play they could not get the ball into the net again.

Just before the interval they almost lost a goal through temporary slackness in defence but, with the goal at their mercy, Durr shot weakly wide of the post. The visitors made a couple of substitutions to try and improve their display but it had little effect.

Mistakes

The visitors started roughing things up a bit after this and during a hectic exchange in the Hongkong penalty area Meier made the most of mistakes by Lok Tak-hay and Kung Wah-Kit to reduce the deficit... but Lau Chi-lam looked a bit at sea as the ball went into the net.

In the 61st minute Meier got another goal when a shot which was going wide was diverted into the home net by a defender. In spite of these interludes the Hongkong attack was still tearing the Swiss defence to ribbons every time it got on the move.

In the 73rd minute Lau Chi-lam scored another grand goal to make it 4-2... and two minutes later he deceived the heavilyfooted Swiss defence to notch his fifth goal of the afternoon. This was a glorious header... and there was no justification whatsoever for the off-side claim made by the visitors. Lau Chi-lam was well inside when the ball was crossed into the goalmouth. The Chinese footballers proceeded to give the visitors a soccer lesson but in one breakaway Durr again missed an open goal... and with the Swiss side hitting the locals with everything except chunks off the side of the Alps—without provoking retaliation—the game ended in a magnificent Hongkong victory.

Verdict: A wonderful Hongkong victory... and the best display by a local side in many years... and the worst crowd in Stadium history... to see the worst performance by a visiting side... maybe there is a moral somewhere... Well played Hongkong—every one of you!!!

The teams

Hongkong Selection: Lau Kin-chung, Luk Tak-hay, Lee Kwok-wah, Lo Chung-king, Kung Wah-Kit, Leung Kam-ye, Au Pang-nin, Lau Chi-lam, Kwok Yau, Tse Ben-ken, Leung Wah-hung, (Lo Kwok-tai).
 Young Boys of Berne: Elch, Grandell, Haldimann, Schneider, Walker, Bliker, Rey, Meier, Durr, Reider, Allemann, (Fuhrer and Sink).

Referee: Mr Sammy Tsang.

Wednesday's match

Eighty-three minutes had gone and there at long last was the ball tucked away in the back of the Swiss net.

To the accompaniment of what was surely the biggest concentrated cacophony of exploding firecrackers ever heard in the Colony little Wong Chi-keung received the back clapping, almost crippling, congratulations of his delighted colleagues for the goal which gave Hongkong a thoroughly deserved victory against the grossly over-rated Young Boys of Berne before a capacity crowd at the Hongkong Stadium on Chinese New Year's day.

The final score means very little. The Colony representatives won this game—morally and statistically—much more easily than their solitary goal suggests. They were better than the tired, faded visitors in every phase of the soccer arts and only a fine sure-handed display by goalkeeper Felix Ansermet kept the leaden-footed Swiss boys in with a chance.

Any result other than a clear-cut victory for Hongkong would have done a grave injustice to the local side who once again PROVED that in the current world set-up they are not so badly placed at all. In recent international encounters they have distinguished themselves against the star-studded Peruvians... the much vaunted Costa Ricans... and now against the champions of Switzerland who just a year ago were in the advanced stages of the European Cup... a team in fact, which runs shoulders on level terms with the greatest club sides in the world.

Poor advertisement

Let us however, face certain facts about the visitors. On the form they displayed in their opening match in the Colony they were a poor advertisement for their country's football. Basking as they are in the title of national champions we expected something very special from them. We did not get it and the side was no more than an indifferent band of successors to the five Grasshopper team of five years ago. They had little in the way of a tactical plan and their attacking centre-half policy failed through lack of vital positional covering by the other defenders... and because the team as a whole was strangely deficient in mobility, skill and match fitness.

AUSTRALIA WINS HISTORY-MAKING TEST SERIES

Melbourne, Feb. 15.

Australia narrowly won the history-making Test series against the West Indies here today after a dramatic victory by two wickets in another thrilling match.

Australia's win—the climax of a series which started with a unique tie and developed into one of the most exciting rubbers in Test history—completed the full circle of recovery for Australian cricket since they were beaten in England in 1950. Since that summer of 1950 when they were demoralised by the spin-bowling of Jim Laker, the Australians have beaten South Africa, England, Pakistan, India and now the West Indies to earn the undisputed title of world champions.

Presentation

During that period they have won 13 Tests, drawn seven, lost two and tied one. Richie Benaud, today's triumphant captain, has led them to victory in the last four series, winning 10, drawing five, losing two and tying one. Benaud was today presented with the Frank Worrell Trophy, the cup-part of the England-Australia "Ashes", inaugurated by the West Indies to commemorate the first tie in Test history at the beginning of the current series.

The presentation was made by Worrell, the West Indies captain, amid tremendous scenes of excitement after Australia had scored a bye to reach the winning total of 258 with two wickets in hand. They made 356 in their first innings. West Indies scored 292 and 321.

They had a grand full-back in Anton Schneider, a less than discreet wing-half in Shurtan, an industrious grafter in Schmelter, the hardest worker afield in Gilbert Rey... and a good winger in Anton Allemann.

The side did nothing to confirm that its international reputation was justified. It played simple football but the team lacked a real personality and missing too was that touch of the unexpected which one looks for in a club that enjoys such high status... but, in fairness, they did improve a bit in the later stages.

Best dressed

The Hongkong selectors must have been very pleased indeed with the boys who took the field in the Colony's gleaming new red and silver kit—identically this was the best dressed Colony side I have yet seen—for every man Jack of them gave a maximum effort.

The men in committee got a real practical vote of confidence from the men on the pitch. The big successes in the home side were Lok Tak-hing who had a wonderful big-time debut and has surely made the right-back berth his own for a long time to come; Ko Po-keung who proved beyond a doubt that he is still the best pivot around these parts; pint-sized Wong Chi-keung—the diminutive bag of tricks with the twinkling toes and a heart a little too big for his own good; and finally seasoned campaigner Yiu Cheuk-yin who worked tremendously hard throughout.

The Colony also got good service from Wong Shiu-woo, Chan Fai-hung, Wong Wah-mun until he tired a little towards the end—and to a somewhat lesser degree from Kwok Kam-hung.

The main disappointments in the side were all up front. Chow Shiu-hung failed to grab his big chance to shine in the top class. Ho Cheung-yau found the pace of the game away beyond him... and Mok Chun-wah just could not find a consistently successful way to beat Schneider. But how hard all three of them tried.

The contrasting colours of the two teams—red for Hongkong and yellow for the visitors—made it a bright holiday picture against the returning green of the Stadium pitch. The crowd was quickly in a good humour as the Colony side scored reputations and proceeded to give the men from Switzerland a war of attrition. For a long time play was in favour of Hongkong and Yiu Cheuk-yin, Wong Chi-keung, Chan Fai-hung, Ho Cheung-yau and Mok Chun-wah all had good shots. Some were just wilds of the water, while those on the target were well handled by goalkeeper Ansermet.

The visitors also had a couple of chances but they were slow to snap them up and the quick-tacking home defence kept its goal intact. There was no score at the interval.

Winning goal

The visitors, who had been a great disappointment, improved a bit in the second half but it was still Hongkong who called the tune although the Chinese boys could not get that all important goal. The moment the fans had awaited so eagerly came just seven minutes from the end. The ball was swept downfield in a fine burst of inter-passing and, when it went to Wong Chi-keung, he beat his man in the space of a ten cent piece... and hit a grand low shot into the net.

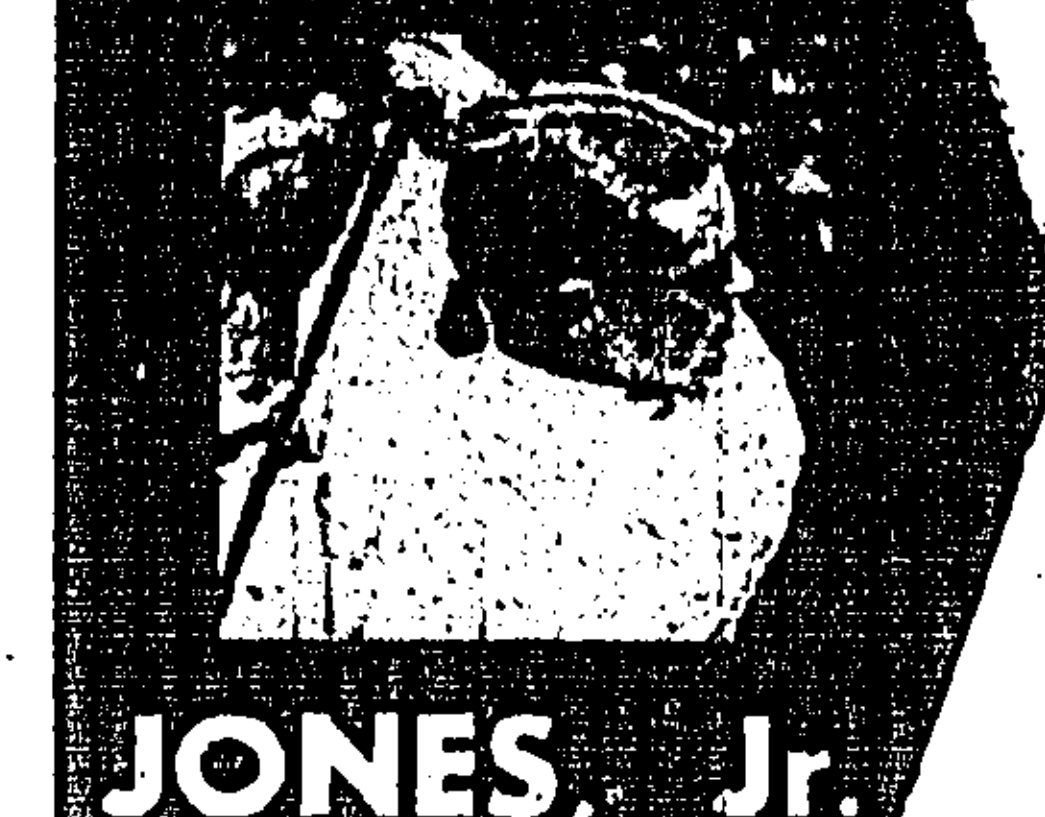

Oh... the noise... the Year of the Ox was in danger of being a year of the roasting ox at its very beginning. The traditional cheers were drowned in the thunderous clouds of flashing banging firecrackers. The visitors had a late chance to equalise but Wechselsberger headed over when it seemed easier to put the ball into the net.

VERDICT: A thoroughly deserved Hongkong victory over a sadly disappointing visiting team... Mr Marsden-White who refereed the game collapsed just after he reached

GOLF IS MY GAME

By BOBBY

The importance of swinging

Some thirty-odd years ago I discovered that an effective position at the top of the golf swing could be reached from a normal address position by making just three separate consecutive movements—first, from the position of address, by employing only the hands and arms, to lift the club directly over the right shoulder (as though to bash the ball into the ground), assuring a full cocking of the wrists; second, to execute a full rotation of the trunk to the right, keeping the head immovable and using the spine as an axis; third, to lift the hands and arms straight up to the normal top-of-swing position.

Upon the execution of these three movements, the player will find himself in perfect position to begin his hitting effort, lacking only the sense of rhythm that he can have only by passing through this position in a complete swing.

The sources of power represented by the windup of the trunk, the cocking of the wrists, and the swinging of the arms are all there. The player's performance will be determined by the efficiency with which he employs these sources.

It is desirable that both upswing and downswing should originate in the trunk.

Swing from Trunk If the clubhead has been picked up from the ball or thrown from the top of the swing with the hands, it is then too late for the hip turn to catch up. In the one case the backswing must proceed outside its proper path, and in the other the wrist-cocking is used up before the unwinding of the hips can have its effect upon the speed of the clubhead.

The swinging of the golf club back from the ball is undertaken for the sole purpose of getting the player to a proper position for striking. So the influence most likely to ensure the satisfactory progression of the swing is the clearly visualised contact between club and ball still at the forefront of the player's mind. Just as the backswing should not begin until this picture is adequately established, so the movement should continue until there results an awareness that the player has become capable of striking in the intended manner.

I stress this point, and intend to continue to do so, because I know that the unremitting effort to play golf in this way can do more for a player than anything else he can possibly do. When every move of the swing is dominated by the determination to strike the ball in a definite fashion, the complicated sequence of movements must acquire purpose and unity attainable in no other way.

Crucial point I have already said that the backswing and downswing as nearly as possible should be blended together so as to comprise one continuous movement. This is a tall order when the two are necessarily in opposite directions. Yet the expert player actually accomplishes just this.

In the swing of the expert there is no single stage at which all backward or upward movement comes to a halt and a fixed position is attained from which the downswing begins. This transition, from upswing to downswing, is a truly crucial point, and it is here that ninety-nine out of a hundred bad golf shots are incubated. Just let the player's hands move a few inches toward his front or let him turn his head a few degrees toward the objective, and the shot will be spoiled beyond recovery.

The all-important fact that I experience as the swing changes direction is one of leaving the dressing room and was later taken to hospital. It is now understood that he has made a good recovery.

clubhead at the top of the swing. To whatever degree this feeling is present, the result is that the cocking of the wrists is completed as the unwinding of the trunk progresses.

This is nothing more important than holding the head back, or even moving it backward, in the act of striking. The golfer speaks of "head-lifting" and "looking up." Actually, he does not lift his head because of any over eagerness to observe the result of the stroke. When trying to strike the ball, the most natural thing in the world is to look at it. In almost every case, the head is moved up because the wrists have been uncocked too soon, and with the angle between the left arm and the shaft of the club being less acute, the head and shoulders simply must come up in order to afford room for the completion of the swing.

Hit through a ball The use of the word "culminating" immediately above may not have been the result of an entirely happy choice. I am a bit fearful that it might have in it a suggestion of too much finality, for it is an integral part of this conception of smoothness that the motion of the clubhead should not be stopped, or even impeded, as or after it strikes the ball.

Indeed, the player must always be aware that he must hit through the ball and not merely at it.

He should strive for the feeling that throughout the downstroke he is continuously building up momentum until his clubhead reaches the maximum possible speed, at which point he should turn the whole thing loose and allow the weight of the club and the effort of swinging to carry him along to a proper finish. A graceful, poised position at the finish of the stroke is not an end in itself, but it is nevertheless a very good indication of what has gone before.

Cocking of wrists As nearly as I can describe the sensation of striking a golf ball, it is a combination of a pull through with the left side, with a slapping action of the right hand and forearm, the left being responsible for keeping the swing on track, or in a groove, and the right being the agent responsible for bringing the movement to a well-timed climax as the ball is struck.

An ample cocking of the wrists and the retention of the greater part of the angle for use in the hitting area is not only important for good timing and increasing the speed of the clubhead, but also absolutely necessary in order to enable the player to strike downward and so produce backspin.

When the angle between the left arm and the shaft of the club becomes straight too early in the downstroke, the club-head at that point will be too low, and the subsequent arc will be too flat.

The main thing is that the backswing should be long enough so that there may be no need for hurry in the downstroke. The aim should be to blend the backswing and the early part of the downstroke into one smoothly flowing movement culminating in a maximum effort and a maximum clubhead speed when the face of the club contacts the ball.

ATTEMPT TO ARREST MAN WITH FIRECRACKERS Policeman shot in struggle

Chinese New Year Day incident

The condition of Li Ying, the 30-year-old policeman shot and injured in an attempt to arrest a man for injuring a boy with firecrackers on Wednesday, was said to be satisfactory this morning.

According to a Government spokesman, the incident occurred at 4.30 pm when the constable on duty at a side gate of the Western Police Station tried to arrest a Chinese, who was said to have injured a boy with firecrackers.

The man put up a struggle during which the constable was shot and wounded.

He was admitted to Queen Mary Hospital in a serious condition but his condition yesterday was reported to be satisfactory. Police later detained a man for inquiries.

NEW ROAD OPENED TO TRAFFIC

The new road through the former Royal Navy dockyard area, connecting Connaught-road with Gloucester-road, was opened to motor traffic on Chinese New Year's Day.

The road was only used by motor vehicles travelling in an easterly direction, from the city to Wanhsai, North Point and Shaikwan.

The southern half of the dual carriageway is expected to be completed towards the end of March.

Building of new Kowloon hospital to begin in May

Construction work will start in about three months' time on the main building of the $60 million Queen Elizabeth Hospital at King's Park, in Kowloon.

This modern general hospital, when completed towards the middle of 1963, will be the largest of its kind in the Commonwealth.

It will have 1,320 beds — an important contribution towards easing the shortage of hospital beds in the Colony.

Tenders for the construction of the main hospital building on the Queen Elizabeth Hospital scheme are called for in today's Government Gazette. Construction work, starting in May, will take about 22 months to complete.

Excavation, piling and basement structure have already been completed for the main building.

COMPLETED

The first stage of this Government hospital project — the Nursing School and quarters for nursing staff — has already been completed.

Externally, the main hospital building will appear to be one single unit but, in order to reduce the circulation areas as much as possible, the building will actually consist of two separate 13-storey vertical units linked together at the lower ground and first floor levels by the administration areas.

There will be 50 bed wards, running the full width of the building. These wards will be so situated that they will obtain the maximum natural ventilation.

All wards will be heated with warm air during the winter. Air conditioning will be provided in wards where necessary and in the specialist departments and operating theatres.

The hospital will have a large casualty department for handling emergency cases. There will not be a general out-patients department but specialist clinics will deal with patients referred for consultation or who may be attending for advice after discharge from hospital.

COOL NEW YEAR

A fresh burst of the North-East Monsoon arrived in the Colony yesterday, bringing the temperature down from 61 degrees on Wednesday to 50.3 degrees recorded by the Royal Observatory early this morning.

It has also brought with it light rain which has been falling over the Colony for 17 of the past 24 hours.

But a spokesman for the Observatory said the rain and the cold spell were "normal for this time of the year". And he warned that it would get colder, with temperatures dropping tonight. It will start warming up in about two days.

From the Files 25 years AGO

February 1936

THE casual visitor to Kai Tak aerodrome will be amazed at the development that has taken place during the last twelve months. The Kai Tak of years ago is no more, and in its place has grown a splendid air port. Reclamation work has been carried out on an enormous scale to provide for ample space on the landing field.

The construction of the new hangar which is being used for Civil Aviation purposes was completed at the end of January.

An extract from the Morning Post's 25 Years Ago column—(February 12, 1911)—says "Today is the birthday of His Majesty Hsian Tung, Emperor of China, and accordingly, we join the countless millions of his subjects in tendering respectful homage to the Throne."

"An interesting side light has been thrown upon the life of the little potentate by Mr Brienx, the famous French academician who was accorded an audience by the Throne and has published his impressions of the occasion."

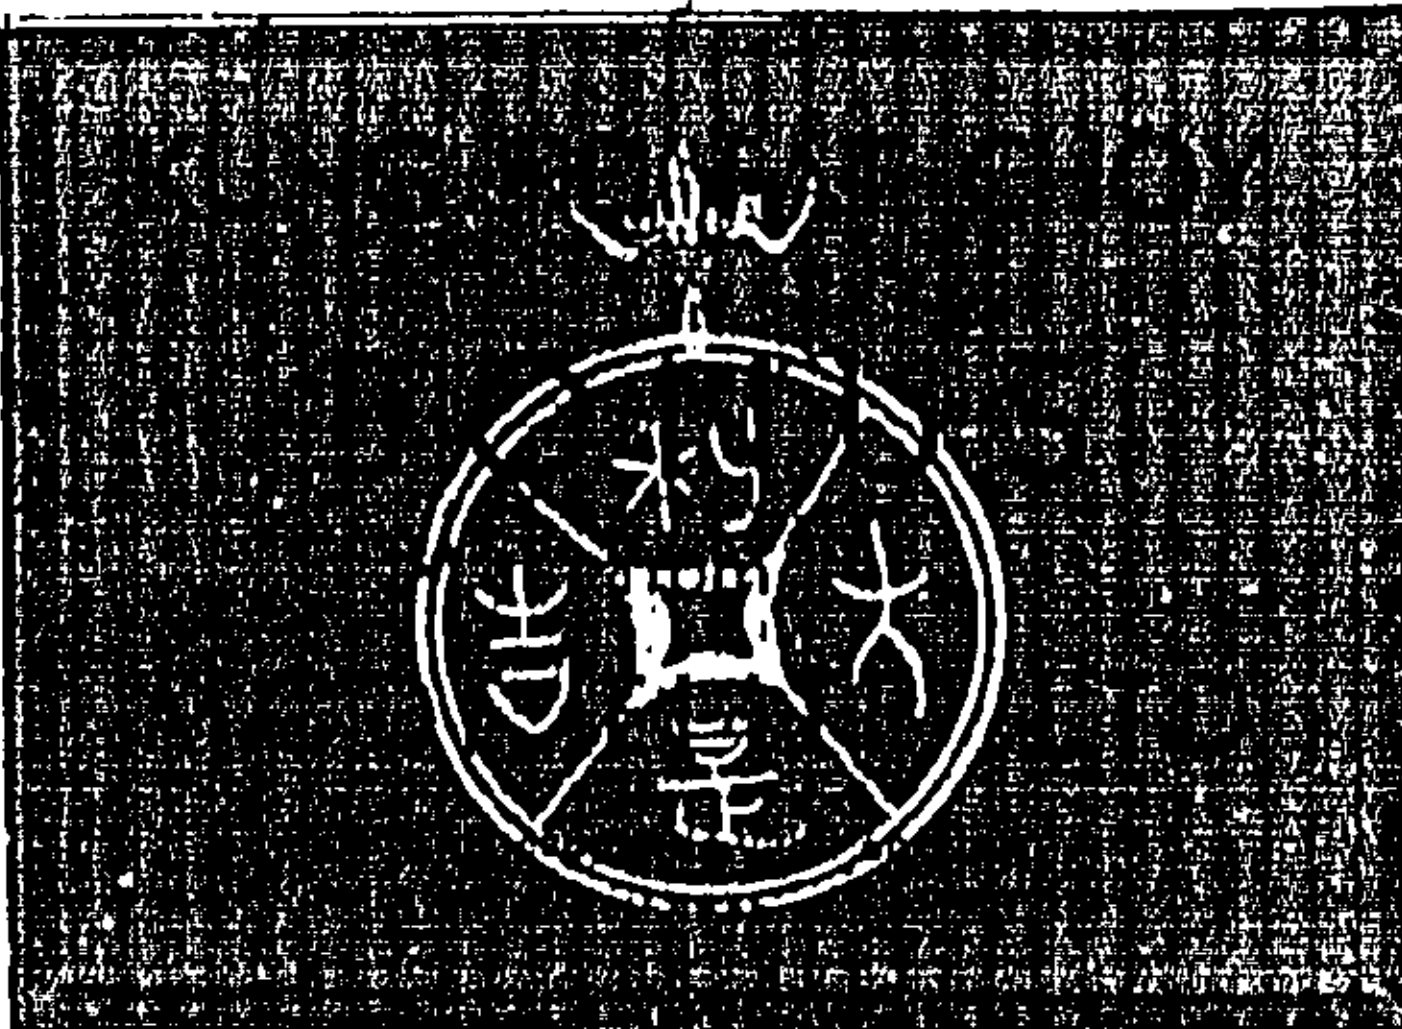

"Mr Brienx says: He walked past the lugubrious row of Ministers and came up to us with a hand extended. His manner was grave, guarded, almost repellent, or rather repelled."

"He has a certain air about him, too — poor little wretch! and the gestures with which he indicated to the Resident and myself positions besides him were full of dignity."

"All the members of the Regency Council kept their eyes fixed upon the poor infant and looked as if they might be whispering the questions and responses carefully prepared beforehand."

"While he exchanged political protocolary speeches with the Resident, I closely watched the little monarch."

"His face is intelligent but displays on close observation more earnest than seriousness. He was very obviously afraid of not knowing his lesson, and his tiny hands crushing a silk handkerchief, betrayed his nervousness."
